W&M students support local elementary students as Virtual Learning Partners

With local schools closed for much of the fall semester due to the pandemic, W&M students have been serving as Virtual Learning Partners to K-5 students in Williamsburg-James City County Schools. More.

FROM THE DEAN

The fall semester has come to a close, and my greatest wish for our community is a winter break that provides some hard-earned respite and peace. Together, we had a remarkably successful semester at W&M and I am deeply grateful for the shared commitment to health and safety that I saw from every member of this community.

The holiday season, like most things under pandemic, will be different this year. Still, I hope you are able to enjoy many of the traditions that make this time special for you, and I hope you will particularly make time for rest and reflection. A new year awaits with all of its hope and promise. I look forward to building it with you.
Pamela Eddy receives 2021 Outstanding Faculty Award from SCHEV

The State Council of Higher Education for Virginia (SCHEV) has selected Pamela Eddy, professor of higher education at William & Mary, as one of 12 faculty members from across the Commonwealth of Virginia to win the 2021 Outstanding Faculty Award. More.

William & Mary students make an impact as NBCC Fellows

Two master’s students and one doctoral student from W&M are serving minority communities through their work in the National Board for Certified Counselors (NBCC) Minority Fellowship program. More.

Newport News Public Schools offers teaching positions to all Spring 2021 teacher education graduates

As the fall semester came to a close, students in William & Mary's teacher education programs got a piece of good news. All May 2021 graduates were offered positions teaching in Newport News Public Schools for the 2021-2022 school year. More.
The Minor in Educational Studies offers undergraduate students a new dimension to their major

The Minor in Educational Studies is designed for undergraduate students of any major who are interested in studying domestic or global educational issues. Hear from current and former students about the impact of the program on their studies. More

A guide to mindfulness for the person who is always busy

As a challenging semester comes to an end, we asked Natasha Townsend M.Ed. ‘21, a master’s student in Clinical Mental Health Counseling, to share strategies to help individuals and families better cope with stress through mindfulness. More.

Books published by William & Mary School of Education faculty in 2020

The following books were authored or edited by William & Mary School of Education faculty members and published in 2020. More.

UPCOMING EVENTS

Dec. 21: School of Education - Meet Current Executive Ed.D. Students
Jan. 06: School of Education - Meet Executive Ed.D. Alumni
Jan. 15: Application deadline for most on-campus graduate programs
Jan. 30: Center for Gifted Education Focusing on the Future
Feb. 22: SURN Family Engagement Academy

STUDENT SPOTLIGHT

Why W&M?

Kelly Leffel
Ph.D. in Curriculum and Learning Design

“I chose to pursue a doctorate in Curriculum and Learning Design because I want to find new ways to support teachers throughout their career, from providing the tools and resources they need and helping them reinvigorate their passion for teaching to being an advocate for policy change.”

Learn more about Kelly
New neighbors, new partnership

Construction is nearing completion in Midtown Row, a new residential, retail and entertainment district just down the street at the corner of Richmond Road and Monticello Ave. We’ve launched a partnership with Current Midtown Apartments to offer our graduate students a unique living-learning community experience. Learn more.

SHARE A STORY
Let us know what you’re up to!

MAKE A GIFT
Support the School of Education

Message sent by:
William & Mary School of Education, William & Mary
PO Box 8795, Williamsburg, VA 23185

Update your information
Unsubscribe